A Happy Year TO Look Forward To

A BUSY YEAR is before us. There is work a-plenty to be done during the coming months—and happily it is work of the building kind. The din of battle is replaced by the whir of peace-time industry, and everybody appreciates anew the joy in the prospect of labor.

We extend to you the Greetings of the Season. We hope that success and contentment will attend all your efforts in this glorious year, in which we look forward to the blessings of peace and constructive work.

U. S. TRANSPORT ON THE ROCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—The American transport Northern Pacific, which left Brest France Christmas day with 2,480 wounded and well soldiers, sailors and nurses went aground at Fire Island, one of the most dangerous coast points, in rain and fog at 3:30 this morning. Seven hours later the vessel was fast in the sand with rain and snow falling intermittently. Naval officials said there is no prospect for releasing the vessel before tomorrow.

The uninjured men were to be brought ashore in a breeches buoy while the wounded and nurses were to be removed in tugs and small boats. A rescue crew, including destroyers has been sent to the point.

The ceiling of the chapel is being remodeled and it is thought chapel can be held Friday morning, at which time Senator Harrison will address the students.

Several new books have been added to the library. It is now one of the largest of the normal schools in the state.

All students who are majoring in music, will be required to take harmony and history throughout the entire year, and will be given university credit for it.

The Oklahoman evidently reads some things with one eye shut. It declares that it has read 250 papers published in the state and found only seven that had anything to say about the wholesale pardoning of state convicts by the governor. Our advice is to take another squint.

The News is in receipt of a circular letter on the Shafer Plan, sent by H. D. Ledbetter of the 12th infantry. The plan is to give all discharged soldiers a year's pay to enable them to get a new start when they reach home. While this would cost a fair sized sum, we believe it should be adopted. The great majority of the men who went to the army made heavy financial sacrifices and this would be refunding only a fraction of what the majority lost while in the service of the nation. By all means give the boys a chance.

It is difficult to know just who the rulers of Germany are. Changes occur so rapidly and leaders overthrown in such quick succession that one is lost in the maze of rapid movement. There appears to be about a dozen parties and each is determined to have its day. Indeed, that is about as long as any one of them can maintain itself in power. There having been no election by the people, these men now in power are there largely through their own appointment. It is still a toss up whether an orderly government can be established or the bolshevist element plunges the nation into anarchy. With famine stalking abroad in the land anarchy is a near possibility. Hungry people cannot be reasoned with.

We are informed by J. B. Hill, County Farm Demonstration Agent, that the hog raisers of this county are preparing to ship a car next month. This is a method of co-operation that will mean much for the future of the hog business. One county in Mississippi a few years ago was buying its meat from Missouri, Iowa and other corn states. Now that same county is not only producing all the meat it uses, but is shipping out cars of hogs every week. Co-operation and good prices are what did it. Co-operative marketing is fast becoming a scientific bit of work, and is the means of farmers increasing their profits very materially. The county agents are the natural leaders in this work, and we are glad to know that Mr. Hill is beginning the move in this county.

The Sinn Feiners of Ireland are brewing a lot of trouble for the Emerald Isle. In plotting for independence they bid fair to lose the home rule which the government of Great Britain is pledged to give them. They have utterly routed the Nationalists, or home rule party of Ireland led by John Dillon and are now in a fair way to bring down serious trouble on the entire island. England is not going to recognize the independence of Ireland and past experience should convince the Irish of the futility of any attempt to win by force o farms. The administration of Irish affairs has been a disgrace to the British government, but the granting of home rule would have righted many wrongs and given the Irish a chance to demonstrate their capability for self government. In grabbing at the shadow of independence the Irish bid fair to lose the substance of self government.

Army Supply Base, Norfolk, Va.
December 27, 1918.
The Ada Evening News,
Ada, Oklahoma.

I have been intending to write to The News from this camp for some time, and as I am off of duty until the 29th I will write just a few lines. I have only received the News four or five times since I have been in the army. It was sent from home by a friend. I was very glad to get it and read the news of a few I knew and some I didn't know.

I trust everyone had a jolly time Christmas, and was visited by Old Santa, who I am sure didn't miss a one. I think near about all of this Company received a package of some kind for Christmas. Some got several. I got five packages. We were very busy during Christmas, and didn't have time to go to town to exchange a gift with those we were expecting one from. Christmas day was our turn to go on guard, so you may know what kind of a time we had. Five were picked out of the Company for patrols at Tutions. This is a negro town—no whites at all. I was one of the five. We were expecting a high old Christmas among that bunch of coon, but I think we got off very light, only had fifty in the guard house next morning. Some got drunk and wanted to show the rest a good time. Some stole the others clothes. Some tried to rob the drug store and a drink stand, and such meanness, but they were all unlucky. There were twenty extras on the guard list this morning to chase prisoners, also twenty-one colored soldiers refused to obey orders Christmas day and they were put in with the rest. We had things going very nicely, some were pretty slow when we first run on them, but when that bayonet got pointed towards them they were ready to double time. They don't seem to care much about the rifle but the bayonet don't look at all good to them.

We haven't any idea yet how far our time lacks being up, though we are all ready for our discharge any time. We haven't thought much about home until they began talking of sending us in, and now everybody is looking for pay day and their discharge. We have a little hopes of getting out in a few weeks. The first sergeant has taken his signs down. Not long ago he made a rag doll and hung it up in the window of the orderly room and a little note read "Let's forget the ones at home" and now he has taken it down.

We got news we would be sent to Fort Sill to be mustered out, that is, the Oklahoma boys and the boys of that direction. We had our Christmas dinner on the 26th. Was put off till then because all the company would be together on that day. We had a fine dinner—was something extra. I will mention a few things; turkey, chicken, all kinds of fruit, pork chops, eggs, pie and cake, several kinds of jam, and a package of cigarettes and a cigar to each one, and other things too numerous to mention; lots of music and singing, and had the champion peg-legged dancer of the world to dance.

Will close before I say too much. With best wishes to all,
H. D. LEDBETTER.

STATUS OF PROHIBITION IN THE UNITED STATES

A survey of the wet and dry situation throughout the country just completed by the Methodist Board of Temperance shows that there are 2,546 dry counties and 351 wet counties. This is a dry gain for the year 1918 of 460 counties. During the year the dries won statewide victories in Ohio, Florida, Wyoming and Nevada, with a recount pending in Minnesota. They were defeated in Missouri and California, but elected ratification legislatures in both states. There are at present 31 dry states, not including Texas, where a statewide prohibition law was held by the state Supreme court to be contrary to the constitutional provision for local option. At present, opening o fsaloons in that state is being prevented by injunctions and refusal of the comptroller to grant licenses.

The probability is that the federal constitutional prohibition amendment will be ratified before February 1, 1919. The following 15 states have already approved the amendment: Mississippi, Virginia, Kentucky, South Carolina, North Dakota, Maryland, Montana, Texas, Delaware, South Dakota, Massachusetts, Arizona, Georgia, Louisiana, Florida. The following states which have not ratified are considered certain to do so: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming. All of these Legislatures meet in January. The list includes every state which has not already ratified except New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania and of these three Pennsylvania is hopeful; New York an even proposition and New Jersey probably opposed to the amendment.

Alabama, where action on the amendment was thought doubtful, elected a dry legislature of 25 to 10 in the Senate and 75 to 31 in the House. In Connecticut there is a 75-ratification majority in the house and the senate is considered safe. In Illinois there will be about 10 majority in each house for ratification. In Rhode Island, only recently considered against the amendment, the vote in the legislature will probably be 23 to 16 dry in the senate and 55 to 45 dry in the house. The Wisconsin legislature, which would naturally be considered uncertain, will ratify by 22 to 11 and 59 to 41.

During 1918, Congress passed the food stimulation bill with a so-called war prohibition section, which was signed by the president November 21st. Congress has enacted prohibition for Hawaii and the president forbade the manufacture of beer, his order becoming effective December 1st.

I am with the 3rd Army Corps, the bunch that is going to cross the Rhine onto German soil. # DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE BIG PARADE.

"There was a wonderful parade once," said Daddy, "and it wasn't so very long ago. It happened in the big city and I didn't know about it beforehand or I would certainly have had you children see it, too.

"But the next best thing to seeing a parade is hearing about it, and so I will tell you about it this evening.

"There were a great many men in the parade and they carried American flags, as they wanted to show the people who watched that they were very patriotic and loyal, and the people clapped, for many of them had not been able to march in the parade, but still wanted to show how fine they thought it was."

"What a funny kind of parade," said Nancy, "with men instead of elephants and camels. I thought you were going to tell us about a circus parade."

"Dear me," said Daddy, "so you think it would be a funny sort of a parade if a queer old creature like Daddy walked in it, and that it wouldn't be funny in the least if Mr. Elephant and Mr. Camel walked in it!"

"Were there some soldiers and some sailors in the parade?" asked Nick.

"Oh, it was a parade of soldiers and sailors—I understand now," said Nancy. "Oh with just soldiers, or maybe just sailors. You said that men marched in the parade and you didn't especially say they were soldiers, Daddy."

"Well," said Daddy, "I don't believe I was very clear. And now we must make it quite plain about the parade—it was a parade of patriotism—and you know well what that means."

"Indeed we do, Daddy," said Nick. "Patriotism means that we love our country and will do anything for it."

"Right you are!" said Daddy.

"Go on about the parade of patriotism," said Nancy. "Please go on!"

"We have certainly done a great deal of chatting this evening," said Daddy.

"Well, that is fun, too," said Nick. "Yes, but of course, in the story time, we must have a story," said Daddy.

They Had Taken Messages Through All Sorts of Dangers.

"And now I will go on with my story—my true story.

"In this parade every one who was not in uniform carried a flag, for the men in the uniform of soldiers or sailors showed their patriotism by wearing the uniform—and the others showed they felt the same way as they waved their flags, for everyone can't wear a uniform, but everyone can be patriotic. "There were many bands, and they played all the tunes we love so well, and the sun was shining down upon the men and the bands and the flags and the people who were watching. It was shining as though it were trying to say:

"I want to do my part, too. I'll shine, I will."

"The parade began early in the afternoon and it continued until the afternoon was gone. So many people were marching.

"All those who stood on the sidewalks clapped and shouted. How fine it was! How proud and happy they all felt!

"But, after many bands had gone by, many soldiers, many sailors, many men in plain clothes carrying the little flags, and after many big American flags had gone by, when all the men took off their hats in honor to the flag, a part of the parade came along that was unexpected.

"A wagon drawn by four big horses, and upon the wagon was an enormous cage which covered it all up. And in this cage were homing pigeons.

"On the side of the wagon was written a little story about the pigeons, telling how they had taken messages through all sorts of dangers, how brave they had been, how clever, and how they had thought of their duty and not of themselves.

"And when that wagon passed along carrying the homing pigeons every one clapped harder than ever, for here were little dumb creatures who had shown a wonderful understanding and had done all they could for the country, and the little pigeons were so modest that they actually wondered what all this excitement was about!"

ALASKA INDIANS SETTLE OLD FEUD

SITKA, Alaska, Dec. 15.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—War, mostly of the smoldering variety but which in past generations has blazed up and drawn blood, no longer exists between the Sitka and Wrangell clans of the Kook-Wan-Ton caste of the Thlinket Indian tribe of southeastern Alaska. Peace was declared at a meeting November 11, the same day on which the world war armistice was signed. Democratic principles, taught the younger Indians by the United States government teachers, prevailed at the peace conference. The Indians decided to set aside their tribal customs. Disputes, the Indians decided, in the future will be settled by the white man's law, instead of by hostilities. No Indian now living can remember the time when the Sitkas and Wrangells were at peace. There has been bad blood between them for years. The last futile attempt to make peace took place in the early eighties, when Jack Yaquah, father of one of the delegates at the last meeting, led his tribe of Sitkas to Wrangell to make peace. A war cry greeted their arrival and nearly all the visitors were massacred by the Wrangells. Chief Yaquan was among the Sitkas killed. Old men of the tribes, it is said, refused to let the hostility die and endeavored to keep alive the fires of hatred. With the passing of many of the old tribesmen, however, the younger men, imbued with the ideas of modern civilization taught them in the government schools, decided they wanted peace. In 1917, Chief Shaks of the Wrangells opened peace negotiations with Jack Yaquan of the Sitkas. He urged the sending of peace delegates to Wrangell where, he proposed, the leaders of the two clans should heal the old wounds. So at the close of the fishing season a delegation of Sitkas went to Wrangell and, after a week of "pow-wows" decided to let bygones be bygones and to abolish the old customs. Chief Shaks, the father of the peace move, died before the meeting was held. So now there is peace on the northern waters and islands and the Sitkas and Wrangells will no longer live in fear of each other. When out on their hunting and fishing trips or when laying their winter trap lines they will visit each other and be friends. A pledge is binding. Do not fail to buy your War Savings Stamps.

ADA EVIDENCE FOR ADA PEOPLE

The Statements of Ada Residents Are Surely More Reliable Than Those of Utter Strangers.

Home testimony is real proof. Public statements of Ada people carry real weight. What a friend or neighbor says compels respect. The word of one whose home is far away invites your doubts. Here's an Ada man's statement. And it's for Ada people's benefit. Such evidence is convincing. That's the kind of proof that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. L. P. Jobe, 304 W. Sixth St., says: "I advise anyone afflicted with kidney trouble to get Doan's Kidney Pills and give them a trial. About six months ago, I used two boxes of Doan's and they completely removed the dull pains in the small of my back and caused my kidneys to act as they should again. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to several others and they have always cured them." Mr. Jobe is only one of many Ada people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS, the same that Mr. Jobe had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 60 cents at all stores. # CROP SUMMARY FOR DECEMBER

(Oklahoma State Board of Agriculture, Frank M. Gault, President.) OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 1.—The condition of wheat is 95 per cent. This is an increase of 2 per cent over the condition of one month ago. The condition of heat on same date in 1917 was 62 per cent. All reports received at this department, show wheat to be in excellent shape and affording plenty of pasture in areas where feed for cattle is most needed. Revised figures on the acreage planted to wheat show an increase 19 per cent over the acreage sown last year. This is an increase of 2 per cent over our preliminary estimate of two months ago. An increase of 19 per cent assures Oklahoma of 3,347,000 acres of wheat for 1919. The farmer still has on hand from his crops of 1918, 37 per cent of corn, 8 per cent of wheat, 26 per cent of oats and 46 per cent of kafir and milo. During the past month he has consumed and marketed 13 per cent of corn, 3 per cent of wheat, 6 per cent of oats and 19 per cent of kafir and milo. On same date one year ago, he had on hand from the 1917 crop the following: corn 38 per cent, wheat 12 per cent, oats 23 per cent and kafir and milo 52 per cent. There is a decrease in the number of livestock on farms at the present time, as compared with the same date one year ago, as follows: horses 4 per cent, mules 8 per cent, milch cows 4 per cent, other cattle 9 per cent, and hogs 14 per cent. The number of sheep on farms show an increase of 5 per cent compared with the number on same date last year. This decrease in livestock of all kinds, except sheep, is due to the number of animals that were sold on account of shortage and high prices of feed. Many shipments were sold on account of shortage and high prices of feed. Many shipments were made out of the State and others to points in the State where feed stuffs were more plentiful. The largest decrease shows up in the Southwest and Western parts of the State.

HOW BOLSHEVIKI GOVERNMENT WORKS

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The Bolshevik government in Russia is described by a man who recently returned from that country as "carpet bag government of the most flagrant sort." Theoretically, he says, the Bolshevik government is popular and supposed to represent the will of the working masses throughout Russia. In practice local Soviets have been bowled over whenever they failed to satisfy Moscow officials, and outsiders have been placed in control. A large proportion of the traveling commissars who go about Russia on armored trains to keep the local Soviets in line are declared to be agitators from New York and London.

The government is described as analogous to such a rule as might be imagined to originate with workmen of New York and Chicago. Carrying out the analogy, such government would recognize the political rights of nobody but workmen in New Orleans and San Francisco. It would overthrow by arms any government in Seattle or San Antonio which did not reflect its own views and would deny the ballot to all persons possessed of property. Under such a government New York and Chicago politicians would be sent with armed trains to overthrow Soviets in St. Louis and Detroit which failed to obey the mandate of the central governing board. Dakota wheat farmers and Texas cotton growers would be forced to surrender their products to armed crusaders at whatever price the central Soviet officials chose to pay. Banks and industries of all sorts would be nationalized. Titles to farm land and city property would vest in the government.

Workmen, the traveler says, compose less than 10 per cent of the population of Russia. Consequently, the assumption of spokesmen of radical labor circles to socialize Russia was more chimerical than it would be in a highly industrialized country. Russia is an unorganized primitive agricultural country; 90 per cent of its peasants possess property which falls within the confiscation lines as defined by Lenine. Siberia and the other undeveloped farming sections of Russian domain offer exceptional opportunities to industrious settlers and these every man stands or falls according to his own industry and merit. Such districts, it is stated, feel no need for effort at socialization and were the first to resent the domination of representatives of the Lenine government.

Insults offered by the traveling commissars and their armed bands have aroused the antagonism of Christian organizations, including the Russian orthodox church. It is asserted that few of the agitators from America are American citizens. Almost without exception they are said to be anxious to return to the United States. They are dissatisfied with bolshevik Russia and, after denouncing the United States in public speeches confess in private that they would rather live in America than anywhere else.

Marksville, La.—Mrs. Alice Johnson, of this place, writes: "For one year I suffered with an awful misery in my back and sides. My left side was hurting me all the time. The misery was something awful.

I could not do anything, not even sleep at night. It kept me awake most of the night... I took different medicines, but nothing did me any good or relieve me until I took Cardui...

I was not able to do any of my work for one year and I got worse all the time, was confined to my bed off and on. I got so bad with my back that when I stooped down I was not able to straighten up again... I decided I would try Cardui... By time I had taken the entire bottle I was feeling pretty good and could straighten up and my pains were nearly all gone.

I shall always praise Cardui. I continued taking it until I was strong and well." If you suffer from pains due to female complaints, Cardui may be just what you need. Thousands of women who once suffered in this way now praise Cardui for their present good health. Give it a trial. NC-133

WOUNDED AMERICANS AT METZ CHEERED RED CROSS.

By the Associated Press.

METZ, Dec. 31.—Thirty-three American wounded soldiers in a ward hospital here who were left behind by the Germans when they evacuated Metz cheered and shouted when two American Red Cross nurses arrived here to care for them. The nurses were Miss R. H. Baxter of Lewiston, Mont., and Miss Marion Whitney, of New York City. It is asserted that they were the first American women to enter Metz after the Germans left. They had been summoned in haste from Paris by an American Red Cross physician, Dr. E. F. Pope of Spokane, Washington, who entered Metz four hours after the Germans departed.

When the nurses arrived the Americans were overjoyed and all wanted to talk to them at once. They had been virtually unattended for three days. Many of them were unshaven.

AMERICAN ARMY BOOT TAMES BOLSHEVIKI

VLADIVOSTOK, Dec. 20 (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The American method of "applying the boot" by a muscular attack of the Stevens Railway commission recently put an end to Bolshevik agitation among refugee charges of the American Red Cross in Vladivostok, as related by Lieutenant M. E. Hall, chief of the local relief organization.

Among the five hundred men, women and children who are being cared for in a remodeled soldiers' barracks in the outskirts of Vladivostok, there were fifteen who would not work.

The physician in charge of the barracks, a Russian, complained to Lieutenant Hall that this coterie of young fellows was preaching Bolshevism to the others and urging them to defy the authority of those upon whom they were dependent on the grounds that the business of the Red Cross was to look after them and that there was no need for them to work. The doctor was threatened with death if he interfered with their program.

Things came to such a pass that Lieutenant Hall asked for assistance and Lieutenant Brunner volunteered to take on the business of disciplining the disturbers. After dinner one evening Lieutenants Hall and Brunner and an interpreter, George Faine-stone, made an unexpected visit to the barracks. The inmates were all lined up and the doctor designated as ringleaders of the Bolshevik element a half dozen young and middle aged men. Lieutenant Brunner, who is a big man with a business-like air, threw off his coat and invited the Bolsheviks to take a good look at him and to listen carefully to what he had to say.

Most of the "slackers" after hearing Brunner's harangue which dealt with the general proposition of "no work no keep" and with details of certain physical discomforts to be expected by any obstreperous ones, elected to become industrious. Two young fire-eaters attempted to parody Brunner's speech and to talk by the coat lapels and shook him until his strength chattered, stopping at intervals long enough for the interpreter to translate as near as possible into Russian some forcible English.

Then, in the words of Lieutenant Hall, Brunner "put his foot behind him and out he went." The other "brave" asked for time to consult his wife and in five minutes returned to announce that he would do anything required of him. He was assigned to scrubbing the stairs.

Another disturber whose practice was to come in late and get out early so as to avoid meeting those in authority put in an appearance as Hall and Brunner were about to depart. His record was well known to them and no time was wasted in giving him a stout leather impetus outward.

The following morning when Lieut. Brunner reached the barracks, so Lieutenant Hall says, he was embarrassed by the numerous applications for tasks by the erstwhile agitators.

Loss of Appetite.
The common grief for loss of appetite covered it, as does an insatiable need for wars. This extraordinary appetite does not seem to be in the least checked by an occasional sting of the protective color of the frog, which is motionless upon leaves, no doubt, hides the most wary of insects into a sense of security.

Mining Oil From Sand Reefs.

The urgent appeal of the government for a greater production of petroleum to meet the demands of war has stimulated activity in all oil fields of the country, says O. J. Grimes in the January Popular Mechanics Magazine. But probably in no other district have such unusual methods been employed to gain production as in the Uintah basin, which is situated partly in Utah and partly in Colorado. Here oil production was sought by driving tunnels instead of wells, and this region can now boast of two oil mines.

The West is especially fortunate in the matter of oil sands. Besides several big deposits in the Uintah basin, probably the largest deposit of saturated oil sands on the continent, if not in the world, which has been brought to the surface by nature, has been discovered in the San Rafael country, in Southeastern Utah. The great oil-sand reefs are exposed there for many miles, but as yet very little has been done to develop this resource because of its isolation from the outside world. The region where the sands are situated is approximately 125 miles from a railroad, by the roads now in use, and is reached only by crossing a desert. However, interest in the proposition has been aroused recently; new highways are being constructed, water wells put down along the highways, and plans are being formulated for active developments of the oil-sand deposits.

Triumph of American Dye Industry.

The latest official reports for the fiscal year which ended with June show that the American exports of aniline dyes in 1914 is significant of the strides made by American chemists in the dye situation. Germany supplied these coal dyes before the war and America paid more than $7,000,000 a year for the products. Today America makes enough of the leading colors for home needs and is supplying other countries in large quantities, as the exports indicate. In the early days of 1915 there were but seven companies in America producing colors. Today it is estimated that there are about 150 concerns in this line.

"A Bit More."

Near a great city school is a shop known to the children who patronize it as the "Bit More Shop." The proprietor caters to the boys and girls in little things the children like, and he always gives good measure—an extra apple or a "bit more" of candy. There are three classes of people; those who don't do their duty, those who do their duty and those who do their duty and something more.—Christian Herald.
